Lee County Boy Meets Sad Fate.

Pennington Gap, Va., Dec. 13. Owen, a boy of seventeen, son of Jim McConnell, who tends the Linton mill, on Powell's river, southeast of town, was caught in a belt and gearing of a large wheel in the mill and received injuries from which he died Monday night.

His father, who was at the house, thought he heard some one crying out, and on going to the mill found the boy still being carried by the wheel; and it is said he was just in time to prevent him from falling from the wheel into the large dam, where he probably would not have been found for some time.

MR. WILLIAM L. BEVERLY DEAD.

Funeral From Baptist Church
Tuesday—A Progressive Spirited Citizen and a Useful Man.

Mr. William Lane Beverly a pioneer hotel man of Gate City, died at his home here Sunday night at 9 o'clock. He had been in declining health for several months, but up to a month ago was able to be down town.

The funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Baptist church by Rev. T. H. Francisco and Rev. J. B. Craft. The body was then laid to rest in Estill cemetery.

The church was beautifully decorated and the large attendance of the esteem in which Mr. Beverly was held.

Mr. Beverly was born in Wise county September 5, 1832, and was therefore a little past 79 years of age. He married Miss Arrena Tharrestes Davis Sept. 21, 1852. Leaving Wise county they lived for some time at Osborn Ford, now Dugannon, and about 1880 moved to Gate City, where they have resided ever since.

Buying the old hotel which stood on the present site of the Nickels Department Store, he improved it greatly and was doing a thriving business, at the same time giving much attention to improving the street by leveling and macadamizing it. He soon had made a great change in the appearance around him. In 1885, a few days after the insurance on his property had expired and while he had overlooked renewing it, the building was destroyed by fire. This was a severe blow to him, but he was not of the class that gives way to despair.

He moved into the old Central hotel, and soon afterward he and several members of his family were prostrated with severe cases of typhoid fever. Arising from his bed as soon as he was able, with only about $20, he began the erection of a large up-to-date three-story hotel on the site of the one destroyed and in a remarkably short time it was completed.

Later disposing of this, he built the fine dwelling house now owned by Mr. J. B. Gilley. Selling that to Mr. Gilley a few years later, he built the house owned by Mr. J. M. Minnich. After disposing of that he purchased the Lively property, in which he resided till his death. In addition to these he built two large barns and some smaller dwellings.

It was a characteristic of Mr. Beverly to build and make improvements. He was a fine manager, a man of great energy and perseverance, and he always made the best of conditions as he found them. He served one or two terms as mayor of Gate City, and made a splendid official.

Mr. Beverly was a member of the historic Beverly family that has played so distinguished a part in Virginia's history. The family traces back to the English nobility. His descent traces back to Robert Beverly, who was at one time deputy colonial governor of Virginia, and who was a prominent officer in the King's forces during Bacon's rebellion. Through marriages the Beverly family is related to the Randolphs, Blands, Tuckers, Carters, Harrisons and other families conspicuous and distinguished in Virginia affairs.

Mr. Beverly was one of the kindest men living. He never turned the needy away and never refused any accommodation in his power to a friend. A number of years ago he professed faith in Christ and joined the Baptist church. As long as he was able he was almost always to be found at his place
